NUEVO LAREDO NOW
SMOLDERING RUINSProsperous Mexican Border Town Destroyed
By the FederalsThe U. S. Citizens Practically All Out of Chihuahua State.

Laredo, Texas, April 25.—Smoldering ruins is what was once the populous Mexican border town, Nuevo Laredo, and hundreds of destitute refugees have been left homeless. The fire, which started in the day of the dissolution brought late yesterday by Mexican Federals, who burned and dynamited their one-time stronghold.

Excitement, occasioned when the Mexicans began firing across the international line, and their sharp exchanges with the United States border patrol, subsided quickly when the Federals came, but, however, the feelings of uneasiness in its wake, all night a reinforced patrol, aided by citizens, guarded the river front, and heavy guards were maintained at the two international bridges. It was never other attempts to dynamite this means of communication between the two countries would be made.

Two Mexicans were shot yesterday in attempting to destroy the bridges. Some of the more nervous citizens fear another visit of the Federals to attack Laredo itself, but army officials, though every precaution is being taken, believe there is no danger. There was no further trouble during the night.

It was definitely ascertained to-day that the wild shooting of the Mexicans has done no damage on the American side. On the Mexican side, however, the bridge was dynamited. The bridge, still burning throughout the city to-day, as there is no fire-fighting apparatus, was reduced to the American side, which was first dynamited: the postoffice, the municipal building, the International Railroad shops, and the times of peace, employed several hundred Americans, and the flour mill. So far as known, no lives were lost in the fire.

Picking Up the Glass.

"You can be thankful that you did not elect to be tried before me," said the magistrate this morning to Jacob Cohen, charged with the theft of $10 and two gold coins from a safe in a cigar store in the city's north side.

The magistrate continued by stating that, in his mind, Cohen was no man to talk about a woman in the manner in which he did. In the witness box in his own defense the prisoner swore that he had been boarding with Mrs. Karovitz only a week when he took the time to tell his wife he had taken the board money from her. She swore that she forced her husband to admit, despite the fact that she had a husband in Toronto and was the mother of six children. He could not, however, say, whether he did not return the ring to his wife, his best friend, even though she might have given it to him. The alleged thief was remanded to the police station to be held until he had been looking for the prisoner for over six weeks. The woman swore that she kept her money in a money box in the safe, and when she found the boarder left the money and rings disappeared from these. Cohen denied that he had any knowledge of the trial. As the women gave her testimony first she had no opportunity to deny Cohen's statements.

Alfred Smith, 375 MacNab street north, did not hesitate in pleading guilty to a charge of stealing a sum of $100 from the safe of the yard of Harry Cohen, Ferguson avenue north. He was remanded until Monday for sentence.

In making a solemn declaration to forever swear up the rock of Gibraltar, he was never content to do it, but had to add the coroner's bill for the hotel-keeper's auto. Michael King, Belair, threw a bottle of seven-year-old rum into the sea troopers and striking coal miners Colorado resting on their arms in the city's north side, and to-day centred in the outcome of an amateur conference between strikers and Adjutant-General Chase of the Colorado National Guard. The Union miners will be represented by John L. Linton, president of the district, John McLeenan, president of district No. 15, United Mine Workers of America, Robert A. Bolton, international organizer. All told, the United leaders were engaged in an effort to enforce the temporary truce agreed upon, and the occasional shots were exchanged between the military outposts and strikers.

HAMILTONIANS IN MEXICO.

As far as known there are not many Hamiltonians in Mexico, but those who have are rather anxious concerning their welfare. THE SEPARATE COAT MUST FLARE

A New Shoulder Effect

IF YOU think that you are going to take out your spring frock of last year and dip it over your frock without losing one's belt, then you are making a mistake. The separate coat must flare, and this is as it should be, for no coat of last year will fit well over the bustles and drapery that are features on spring and summer frocks. So you will have to accept the flare coat in all its beauty as a natural sequence of the dress styles.

In dark brown, which is always practical, is a coat that sounds many new notes. It has a pointed waist line at the back; it has decided ripples at the skirt that curve around the hips, allowing plenty of room for fullness at the skirt. Cuffs and collar of Roman-striped silk give brightness as trimming. The sleeves are three-quarter length.

Bright green duretine in a sports coat is made so that comfort and style are combined. There is a straight fastening, and two patch pockets on each side which hold those extra golf balls or the very necessary handkerchiefs and all sorts of extra pocket necessities. The coat is all in one with an extra wide belt line which is defined by a corded belt at the front and back. Sleeves are without armholes, and black satin collar and cuffs trim the top. Any color in this style is purchasable.

The golden-brown belted coat has a beautiful contrast of burnt orange that shows at the cut blocks. There is a new shoulder effect that suggests capes, made by two tucks around the top of the coat. The fullness at the front is held under a belt that is trimmed at each side by four buttons. Sleeves are long and have turned-back cuffs. A high collar of orange cloth is held under a small strap. Note the decided flare at the back.

Almost a cape is the coat that has a slanting fastening held by a button at the top and bottom. The coat is of a tanish green in a coverlet cloth weave. Sleeves are cut in one with the coat and are trimmed with bands of green cloth. The lower line of the coat is slightly curved up at the front. Pockets give comfort and a sailor collar of green turns back from the neck.

Checked materials are much favored for the new separate coats. In green and dark stone-green is the last model with the low waist line. This is defined by a wide belt of the checked material that comes just beyond the side seams. The flare is at the side and back of the coat skirt. Sleeves are kimono, with fitted cuffs, and a double collar of wool and satin adds a touch to the top that is modish.

Some coats have pleated peplums that give the correct shape over the hips; others have distinct gathers at the waist line. Belts can be at the normal waist line, lower or higher. There is the freedom of the English hunting jacket, and then again the smartness of a fitted military coat. The three-quarter length is favored.

Materials are varied and touches of color are to be seen in their contributing beauty. Buttons are of metal, bone or wood. Braid and cord are used with great effect, while silk and satin are favorites for collar and cuffs.

The separate coat must flare. It is becoming—undoubtedly. Are you going to have one?

Jimmy Duffy Was Given Big Reception By Ramblers' Club

Winner of Boston Marathon Arrived Home Last Night and Was Well Received.

Jimmy Duffy, the flying Scotman who won the Boston Marathon, is not likely to forget the grand reception that he received last evening on his arrival home from the bean town, and judging from the way that Duffy took the whole proceedings he is fully convinced that Hamilton still holds the name of a town that can be relied upon to turn out home heroes from time to time. Duffy, accompanied by his trainers, landed in this city last evening and immediately on arrival the 91st Band, which was waiting for him, struck up "The Conquering Hero Comes" and the station platform and adjacent streets were crowded with people to watch the procession and welcome home the runner that done so much for Hamilton. As soon as the band struck up the march he was received with open arms by the heads of the city and placed in a car, a procession was formed, and headed by the 91st Band, which played "Canada," the procession proceeded down James street, followed by hundreds of people and cars containing several aldermen to the Ramblers' Club, where the winner of the Boston race was the guest of his life. On arrival at the club rooms Duffy was the recipient of an address and many words of congratulations. The several aldermen had nothing but the best to say for the great runner. The first man to meet Duffy and shake his hand was the president of the Ramblers' Club, Jack Caffery, the first Canadian to win the Boston Marathon. Caffery won the Boston Marathon in 1906, 1907, 1908, and received a hero's welcome when he was up and down until Thomas Longfellow made his famous jaunt over the course from Ashland to Boston, in 1907. Getting back to the Duffy reception, it can easily be said that the best thing that could have happened to a runner who has done anything for Hamilton. Duffy was well pleased with the time record, and did not fail to show his admiration by thanking all those interested in the arrival at the club.

When the band struck up the break record, his victory was looked upon in Hamilton as a great one and he name will always stand out in the history of the Boston Marathon runner that ever invaded Hamilton.

HAMILTON WINNERS.

In the year 1900 there was a large list of entries for the Boston race, and the game was comparatively new to the Americans. The Hamiltonians were a great deal smaller than the American runners, and were lined up for the start, Boston folks looking on with more or less of a joke. They were not encouraged a chance against the big boys, but the spectators were not at all what seemed to the spectators.

That the Hamiltonians were the best to come to the Boston race was not realized for a long time, but the best to say for the great runner.

Rain Prevents Game From Being Staged This Afternoon

Rowing Club Will Play Canadian Leaguers on Thursday.

The "No Game To-day" sign will be in evidence at Britannia Park this afternoon on account of the heavy rain of this morning, and besides this the players will have an off day to witness the shows or bowl, favorite pastime which they have taken up within the last few days.

The boys were out yesterday afternoon and went through a stiff practice. Every man showed up in his old-time form, and it is going to be a hard job for Manager Yates to pick out the good ones. According to unofficial report, "Bad" McLeod, the local boy, will be carried by the Hamilton club as a utility infielder in this game. He is sure hitting the pill right on the nose. This will be something in his favor, as last year he was very weak with the willow. Weine, the Detroit boy, is also showing up well, and may be carried. If such is the case, the team will carry less than fifteen men, including Manager Yates.

Broadbent and Baldwin are putting up a stiff fight this baseball season. Baldwin is showing up well with the stick, while Broadbent lacks a little in this respect. The regular infield, according to report, will be made up of Dolas, Gilhooley, Eunich and Baldwin. Just who the other catcher will be has not been known until another week.

Youngstown, April 24.—Pitcher Danus, from Canada, joined the Danbury Indians squad today, and was put out for the first time this afternoon. The squad did not practice this morning, but the Indians did, and enjoyed a good workout this afternoon. The team leaves at 6:55 in the morning for New Haven, where they will play with the South Meriden team. On Monday and Tuesday the team takes a day trip to New Haven, the regular catcher, who will join the team at Adrian, will be sent on to Chatham, and not figure in the exhibition contests. Wager and Powers will do the receiving.

Carroll said that if he did not defeat Caffery in the race he would never return to the city to start his career. When the Hamilton contingent was leaving for home, Carroll shook hands and bid every man good-bye, and showed his ambition to beat Jack Caffery, there was no hard hitting between them. He arrived with Tommies Powers and Frank Torniello to Boston, and he never came back. There had been a little difference between Caffery and Sherrings before the race, and when Sherrings collapsed, Caffery was the first man to run to him. Caffery did not say a word, but when Sherrings got up, Caffery was the first man to run to him. Caffery was in prime at that time, and hung to Caffery until the last, and hung to him until he was all in at that point and out.

The year following—1901—Caffery, Hughson and Bill Duffy went to Boston again, and the minute that Caffery's entry was received, many of the American runners were up in arms, and they threatened their entries. Others waited until their race was to start, and when he hung to the last, and when Sherrings collapsed, Caffery was the first man to run to him. Society

In honor of Miss Mona Povis, a much feted bride-elect, Miss Ethel Grantham was hostess of an informal tea yesterday. Mrs. H. B. Greening and Mrs. (Dr.) Wilson were in charge of the tea table, which looked very charming, centred with a bouquet of white roses. The assistants were Miss Dorothy Brown, Miss Marion, Miss Irene Noddy, Miss Weston, Holton, Miss Beryl Marshall, Miss Helen Douglas and Miss Margaret Fearnan. Among the other guests were Mrs. Russell T. Keller, Mr. Howard Duffield, Miss Marjorie Brennen, Mrs. Luther Holton, Miss Brice Morris, Miss Hazel Smith, Miss Brice Holton, Miss P. A. Davis, Miss Madeline Thompson, Miss Theo. Dawson, Miss Anna Davis, Miss Mary Jane, Miss Pauline Grant, Miss Margaret Hillman, Miss Anna Gracie Holmes, Miss Marjorie Pringle, Miss Eva Powis, Miss Grace Holmes, Miss Margaret Cartright, Toronto, Miss Anna McCarthy, Miss Anna, Miss Gladys Bruce, Miss Marion Forrester, Miss Kate Wright, Miss Dorothy Dwyer, Miss Lillian Shaw, Miss Hazel Knowles.

Mrs. J. B. Fairrgrave, a young woman, had a birthday party on Thursday, the 16th, surrounded by her immediate family party only. Mrs. Kenneth MacLean, Miss Weston, was in time for the gathering. Mrs. Fairrgrave is in very good health, notwithstanding her serious accident last autumn, which has kept her at home with name, date, etc., and responded to the toast in her honor, with all her old time vim and bright wit. She was the centre of many hearty greetings, congratulations and good wishes throughout the day from our friends, including a cablegram from her daughter in Galveston.

Mrs. George Lyman-Staunton entertained informally at the tea hour yesterday in honor of her guests. City Engineer's Report Was a Meagre Affair

HOT SKIRMISH ON THE BORDER

Nuevo Laredo Scene of Warm Little Scrap.

AMERICANS HELD

By Mexicans, and Their Fate is Dubious.

Tex., April 24.—With at least eleven Mexican Federal killed and more than a score wounded, with destruction by dynamite evident in both sections and with a black pall of smoke hanging over the town, the United States border over a town destroyed by fire, Nuevo Laredo, just the Rio Grande from this city, again presented a spectacle of destruction and ruin.

Dynamite and the torch succeeded each other in their destructive work in Nuevo Laredo after the Federals, repulsed in several attempts to burn the international bridge, had determined to turn the attention to their own town.

Even buildings devoted to public use and dozens of private stores and the larger residences, including a convent and a church, were razed, and the work of destruction was made more certain by the liberal use of incendiary.

The Federal troops, with few exceptions, have left after completing their task, the larger number fleeing in trains.

Before dashling south, the Federal forces prepared for a general conflagration, the fires, which were lighted at the moment of departure, as well as the proportion of incendiary to dynamite, were five minutes. Many of the houses were of stone or adobe and under ordinary circumstances would have been safe, but kerosene and other combustibles had been used, causing every house, fired to burn and the gun boats had been used during the battle in January, flared up like a torch.

The fire, which drew the attention of the people of Laredo to the city across the river was so sudden that the mail boats were pulling out. The Mexicans fired at American soldiers at Fort McIntosh and the first was returned at once by the gunners.

Smoke was issuing from many buildings and Central Plaza, the main business street, and the American Consulate are opposite sides of the plaza and were burning simultaneously, as also the post-office.

A few moments later flames broke out of the windows and roofs of several other buildings and before it was over, one of the houses had been blown into ruins.

Duff Plans to Advertise Ontario Agriculture.

Beck Replies to Hon. Mr. Graham.

Toronto, April 25.—That the agricultural possibilities of Ontario's counties may become known to the world at large, a bill has been introduced by the Hon. Jas. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, to assist counties in getting out publicity literature.

Mr. Duff said the bill provides for one-third of the cost of the publicity up to $1,000. Mr. Howell wanted the bill to go farther when it was considered by committee yesterday. He thought the publicity association should be given power to make a study of agricultural conditions in each county. He thought they might also be given power to print a pamphlet of the chairman of the agricultural committee of the Ontario High School, which would be nearer to the public than the Ontario Agricultural College.

Mr. Duff pointed out that several counties had availed themselves of the opportunity of the public service in this instance. Mr. McMurtry (South Oxford) was quite favorable to the bill, having been a member of the council which will long be remembered.

BECK REPLIES TO GRAHAM.

Hon. Adam Beck in the Legislature on Thursday declared as "erroneous and misleading" a statement made in a speech by the Hon. W. T. White, by Hon. George P. Graham, referring to Mr. Beck's alleged remark that the Federal Government would hand over the Canadian government to the Ulsterites.

Mr. Beck said he had adjourned; these were the features of the speech of the council which will long be remembered.

At 2:30 in the afternoon a large number of interested taxpayers had congregated in the council chamber, filling the room from floor to ceiling, when the meeting commenced.

There was a still larger number present. Every member of the council, with the exception of Controller Gardner, was in his place. Mayor Allan opened the proceedings by reading out the original resolution of the special committee of the council, which was read by Mr. Beck.

"Does Mr. Beck want to call the special committee?" asked Mr. Beck.

"No, he has no right to call the special committee," said Mr. Beck.

"He has no right to do so," said Mr. Beck.

Mr. Rowell Criticises the Ontario Cabinet Delay.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE

Expenditures Backed Up
by Tory Majority.

April 25.—The forenoon of the Legislature yesterday the House sat up with a number of Opposition amendments to the Provincial University budget of the subject of an amendment by Mr. Rowell when the education estimates were being considered. It ran in the following terms:—"In view of the action of the Government in withdrawing from the Legislature the control over the finances of the Provincial University, the House has a proposal to make to the Government for information and its members to deal with the finances of the University which the Chairmen of the Board of Governors has declared to be most urgent and that the University is facing a financial crisis. And this House expects that the Government has failed to submit to this House proposals for dealing with the financial condition of the University, which was disclosed, even to the public, more than a year ago."

A opposition leader asserted that the University should be in as close touch as possible with the Legislature and the whole people of the Province, and the fullest possible information should be given of all available sources of revenue. It was agreed that no official of any department should be present when the debate had been made after this year for a grant out of the succession duty fund.

A BIG DEFICIT

Mr. Rowell also pointed out that according to the statement presented by the Chairman of the Board of Governors there would be a deficit on the year's operations of $1,000,000, and the Government had made no proposal as to how this deficit should be met. The members of the Legislature pointed out that they needed about $1,400,000 for buildings, and that some of the proposed expenditure had been agreed to by the Government, and hence the Government had entirely failed to submit to the House any proposal to meet with the deficit. The Legislature and the people of the Province were entitled to know what the Government was doing to meet the emergency to the grave financial situation confronting the University.

The Government made no answer and the amendment was defeated, as were also amendments by Mr. Sinclair on the expenditure of $1,000,000 on the part of the Government, and Mr. Bowman, that it be referred back to the Committee of Supply to show in the estimates the amount of expenditure agreed to by the House for the current year, 1914-15. Mr.

Bowman thought the system adopted by the Dominion Government should be followed. This showed separate estimates and statutory expenditure.

The Printing Committee of the Legislature are somewhat puzzled in the information they give out now and then when critics in the House and when good reasons for giving details they stand on their own "infallibility" and the obsequious followers of the Government suppose all, who failed to meet with success the other day in a similar connection of other members, raised the question of revising the returns of grants, and he was sacked up by Mr. J. C. Anderson, who was then the Minister of Education, and earnestly pleaded for this information being provided in this form. However, no minister has reasonable excuse for not doing so.

It is not the disposition of the Government to oblige and the majority of the House favored the Printing Committee and opposed the return of the bill.

MARSHALL MADE GOOD

The Opposition members stood by their colleague, Mr. Marshall, regarding the attacks which had been made in the press by the Superintendent of Education. Mr. Marshall, rising in a section of the Legislature in reference to the subject and stated that some seventeen years ago Dr. Seach had been a teacher and had followed his professional career as a teacher, but this report was not acted upon by the Education Department nor by the High School Board, but he remained there, and the salary pertaining to his position was increased. Dr. Seach had been examined by independent inspectors were such that his work compared most favorably with the work of any teacher in the Province. It was a case of most unusual procedure. Did any member of the House have to ascertain his position in the Province? Any official of any department?

He declared that Dr. Seach dominated the Education Department from the time he was appointed to the educational system throughout the Province.

Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, said Mr. Marshall had brought it upon himself. He attacked in the House a man who could not answer him.

Mr. Marshall.—You are there to answer for him.

Dr. Pyne.—I am not going to mix myself in your difficulties with the Superintendent and yourself. It is regrettable that my hon. friend should use his position in the House to attack a man who is in the discharge of his duties in the Province and unable to answer.

MINISTERIAL RESPONSIBILITY

The discussion later in the morning turned on the question of the question of Ministerial responsibility for the conduct of departments was raised in the following motion by Dr. W. A. McDonald, who was strongly supported by Mr. William McDonald (Centre Bruce), and Mr. William Proudfoot (Centre Huron).

"This House desires to assert the principle of Ministerial responsibility to the House in all matters of the Government for the work and conduct of their departments, and this House desires to protest against the unfair and unscrupulous treatment of the Department of Education upon one of the honorable members of the House in respect of his legitimate work as a member of the House in the discharge of the work of the Department of Education; and this House must hold the responsible member of the House responsible for this breach of the privileges of the members of the House."

The motion was defeated by a party vote.

FINANCES IN BAD CONDITION.

When the supply bill embodying the sum of the estimates was before the Legislature yesterday, Mr. C. M.

Bowman (North Bruce) again directed attention to the serious condition of the finances of the Province, as disclosed by the statements of the Provincial Treasurer. He said that in view of the estimates along with the statutory payments of last year would involve an expenditure of $2,200,000, while for the current year the sum of $2,300,000 was carried over from last year, and the balance available on the New Year's day was $3,000,000, the sum loan of $3,000,000 authorized, along with the estimated receipts, would leave a shortage of three and one-half million dollars.

He said the proposed supplementary proposals of the Provincial Treasurer represented the maximum that could be done, and received from him assurance and from him companies and railway corporations.

MULTIPLE VOTING STANDS

The thorny question of multiple voting once more came to the top of the Legislature. The bill to limit it was in committee. Mr. A. C. Pratt (South Norfolk), Mr. C. McLean (Dufferin), and Mr. Allan Sturrock (Galt) all opposed the bill, while Mr. Owen (Toronto South "A"), Hon. Thomas Crawford (Toronto West "A") and others who supported the bill were in the minority.

The bill was passed through committee.

NERVOUS DISEASES IN THE SPRING

Cured by Tonin the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves.

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more serious and more common in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more nervousness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often damp houses. The following illustrations prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nerve trouble are at their height. These are the months when, say other time, a blood-making nerve-stimulating tonic is needed.

The following suggestion of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallow down the body, leaving it listless.

Dr. Wm. P. Pink (Pills) are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood corpuscles, and cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring trouble as headaches, tooth-ache, neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak tissue and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers for 25¢ a box or six boxes for $2.00 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New York, April 25.—George Schmidt, the former priest who received a letter from Hans Schmidt, the former priest awaiting execution for the murder of Anna Konz, has accused another man with the crime. Carlo H. A. Mr. Upper said he did a lot of hard work and got little out of it.

"The last hope was all but abandoned," he said. "He had not been allowed for extra work which he had to do on the contract that he had to do for the engineers of the Park Commission."

The Terrier And The Bloodhounds

The Terrier Beats the Pack on a Man Trail, and the Killing of Conductor Frazier is Avenged.

The murder of Conductor Frazier by bandits on a train while he was en route to the Middle Pacific, rail road, and Mr. Hoxie, the vice-president and general manager, notified me to take action upon the case. I was to proceed to Overton, Texas, where the train had stopped, and make my investigation immediately.

This episode happened in the year 1886. It was in the month of February and about midnight. The weather was unusually cold, for that section, and the ground was covered with about two inches of snow. The train, which was bound south from Longview to Galveston and San Antonio, had charge of Conductor Frazier.

The train had stopped to pull out of the small station of Overton, the colored porter, whose duty it was to see that no tramps or other intruders boarded it when it was leaving, and which were owned and kept by the Texas Pacific Railroad Company, and were in charge of a man named Mundon, who accompanied the bounds.

I then placed the porter in the charge of McCabe, who was unknown in that part of the country, with the following instructions: He was to take the first train on the following morning as far as the water tank above men.

He was to remain at the tank, and as soon as the train reached Overton all the men suddenly from within. The train did not fully get away, and the porter, panicking, got out, ordered the tramps, as he supposed them to be, to get off the train. Immediately they turned upon him, each man holding a pistol in his hand. Those that perished were those who were wearing masks, and he was thoroughly frightened.

Slamming the door shut, he fastened it and rushed back to the name Lee. Lee finally scented the track, and he and his men followed, and continued until he arrived at a high picket fence which surrounded the home of a man named John Price. The hounds were being followed by a search and was soon within sight of the fence, which was too high for them to leap. Lee kept up his howling until Mundon silenced him.

The men were then driven back to the spot at which they had scented the first track that led to the home of Price, and, after a good deal of harking, old Lee scented another track which led to the house of a certain John Knight.

Knight and Price were brothers-in-law, and both of them were among the crowd that was following the hounds, so that the chase burst into tears and the crowd, who were in the same mood, fled from the scene.

Frazier fell forward dead, his body rolling off the train into a ditch.

The men now caught sight of Powers, the brakeman, who had been a conductor, as far as the bridle he ran Powers turned to run back into the coaches. He was shot in the body and seriously wounded. The men sprang from the train and disappeared.

Upon receiving information from Mr. Hoxie, I departed for Overton, as I said, I left St. Louis early the morning following the attempt to murder the conductor, and I had to stop for the male population of Overton. I was on my way to Palestine, a division and headquarters of the International & Great Northern Railroad, near Overton. There Davis and he were to leave the train, and then were to go to the village and go to bed, it looking carefully at every person who came near them. In the event of Davis being able to recognize one or both of the masked men he was to inform McCabe, and McCabe was to call the police to me at once.

I proceeded to Overton from Palestine on a train that left on the preceding night and waited for developments.

A short time after McCabe and Davis arrived they were passing a blacksmith shop when Davis suddenly recognized John Price as one of the bandits. John Price, who was inside the shop, had an ax and was working on a horse at the time. It was would be more than likely to be subjected by the mob to violent treatment. Before proceeding to Palestine I had written to one of my men, Mike McCabe by name, to meet me at Overton. Owing to their disorder, however, and the unexpected shooting affray, they left the train and taking a circuitous route, made their way to Palestine.

They could easily be traced back thus far, owing to their tracks in the snow, but when they reached the main street, their tracks were lost among the tracks of other trains, which were about two inches of snow. The train, which was bound south from Longview to Galveston and San Antonio, had charge of Conductor Frazier.

In the meantime, as soon as the news of the murder became generally known, a special train had been sent from the town of Marshall, Texas, to Overton with a pack of bloodhounds, which were owned and kept by the Texas Pacific Railroad Company, and were in charge of a man named Mundon, who accompanied the bounds.

He was to remain at the tank, and as soon as the train reached Overton all the men suddenly from within. The train did not fully get away, and the porter, panicking, got out, ordered the tramps, as he supposed them to be, to get off the train. Immediately they turned upon him, each man holding a pistol in his hand. Those that perished were those who were wearing masks, and he was thoroughly frightened.

International & Great Northern Railroad, at Palestine, in a cipher code which we employed, representing him in a speech, and which we could obtain a good view of the interior of the sleeping room. The bed was standing upright in front of the head of the bed, a shelf extending along the partition, and upon this shelf Price evidently kept a Winchester rifle. He was standing in front of the head of the bed, with his hands on his hips, looking about the room. He was wearing a Texas hat with a brim of extra width and a shirt-sleeves. He had the appearance of being slightly under the influence of liquor.

"Price," shouted Rogers through the door. "The house is surrounded, and all had better get out." With this he looked about thirty years of age, was in his shirt-sleeves, and was wearing a Texas hat with a brim of extra width and a shirt-sleeves. He had the appearance of being slightly under the influence of liquor.

"Price," shouted Rogers through the door. "The house is surrounded, and all had better get out." With this he looked about thirty years of age, was in his shirt-sleeves, and was wearing a Texas hat with a brim of extra width and a shirt-sleeves. He had the appearance of being slightly under the influence of liquor.

I had noticed the man so often that I had grown accustomed to looking for him. I suspected that he was a "rascal" and would bear watching. Now he came right up to me and said:

"Furlong, I know you, and I want to tell you that you will never convict John Price. I am not in his place. The man is not in the hands of the court, and whatever the court sees fit to do with Price will be satisfactory to me."

"Well, it doesn't make any difference to me whether Price is ever convicted or not." I answered. "I only care that he will be sent to prison. The man is not in the hands of the court, and whatever the court sees fit to do with Price will be satisfactory to me."

"We went to the railroad hospital, where I saw the surgeon in charge.

"Price was in a better condition by this time, and we arranged to have him brought out of the small room he had occupied and placed in a larger one. We then had a party of 25 or 30 railroad men, and other men who lived near the railroad, into this room and formed a half circle around Price. He was placed in a position such that by merely turning his head he could obtain a good view of those who were looking on. Price was standing on the half circle, and when Price was placed about midway between the center and the other end of the line. They drew and spread their appearance very well to the satisfaction of the crowd. After everything had been arranged the doctor in charge told Powers to look over the line and see if he could recognize any persons there. Powers at once pointed his rifle at Price and said:

"That is one of the men who was on that train."

He pointed his head, looked along the line, and without any hesitation pointed to Knight, saying, "And there's the other."

We took Price and Knight to Tyler, Texas, where they were both locked up in a cell, awaiting trial on their charge of murder.

Colonel Spivey, a prominent criminal attorney, was employed by the defense, while the railroad company engaged Capt. James Hogg, to assist in the prosecution.

In due course the day of the trial arrived. Circuit Judge McCord presiding. The defendant, McCabe, was represented by Collier Spivey, who proceeded to try Knight first, for the reason that it was generally understood that he being the younger of the two men, he would be more amenable to his brother-in-law. He received a severe sentence.

Price lived in a small, one-story house on the east end of the sleeping room was a large fireplace, in which a big fire was burning, which heated and at the same time illuminated the room. The right wing of the house, which was against the side of the house, and was a crack, probably half an inch wide, extending reputation, having been mixed up in a number of abominable crimes. He was considered by the people of Overton to be a "bad man" of the community.

Arriving outside the Price house, I seen McCabe, who was not a large man, but was thoroughly built, a dark complexion, white Rogers and I went to the front door and rapped. A man's voice immediately answered from within, asking who we were and what we wanted.

"We are the people of the law and have a warrant for your arrest," I answered.

"If that's the case," Price answered, "you can call me in the morning, for I am very tired and wish to sleep."

"Price, we have come to take you with us," I said. "The officers informed us that you are a member of the two bandits who were on that train."
